The Deputy General Counsel, Litigation serves as the primary legal advisor to Exelon's senior management with respect to all legal matters enterprise-wide that are in active litigation or in a posture where litigation is substantially likely (except that litigation with Labor, Employment and Employee Benefits is the responsibility of the LE&E DGC). The DGC Litigation is also the primary legal adviser to senior management with respect to the litigation aspects of legal matters within another practice area. The DGC Litigation sets the Exelon vision and overall legal strategy for his or her area of expertise. The DGC Litigation is responsible for all legal services relating to the Litigation practice area and provides leadership for and manages attorneys and other legal professionals in that practice area throughout Exelon. The DGC Litigation performs legal services involving high-level or complex legal matters in the Litigation practice area.

Minimum Qualifications:

- An LLB or JD from an accredited law school and be licensed to practice law in the relevant jurisdictions
- At least 15 years of professional experience in civil litigation
- Strong managerial and leadership skills sufficient to lead and motivate a diverse professional workforce
- Superior legal judgment in the business context
- Advanced oral and written presentation skills and ability to interpret and clearly convey complex information
- Ability to address challenging legal issues, managing competing interests and provide counsel to senior management

Exelon is proud to be an equal opportunity employer and employees or applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to: age, color, disability, gender, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, protected veteran status, or any other classification protected by federal, state, or local law.
