

The George Washington University Law School may make one full-time appointment to the position of Associate Professor of Legal Research and Writing. The position is non-tenure accruing and non-clinical. The Associate Professor of Legal Research and Writing will teach in the first-year Legal Research and Writing Program. The Associate Professor also will have significant administrative responsibilities, including, in coordination with the Director of Legal Research and Writing: (1) coordination of the scholarly writing program, and (2) shared oversight and management of the adjunct professors and teaching assistants who participate in the Program.

Job Qualifications: Applicants must possess a J.D. degree or an advanced degree in a relevant field and have relevant experience. Applicants must have an outstanding academic record, excellent legal research and writing skills, and demonstrated administrative or management experience. Applicants must also have four or more years of experience in a clerkship and/or in law practice and two or more years of teaching experience. Applicants also must demonstrate the ability to work collaboratively within a coordinated program structure.

Application Procedure:

Applications are now being accepted and will be accepted until the position is filled. Please complete an online faculty application at <http://www.gwu.jobs/postings/37700> and upload a cover letter that summarizes your qualifications and a current curriculum vitae. Only complete applications will be considered.

Only complete applications submitted either through AALS or GW's online system will be considered. Review of applications will begin on October 22, 2016, and continue until the position is filled. Employment offers are contingent on the satisfactory outcome of a standard background screening.
