Overview

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is looking for the best and brightest to join our team. Our mission is to protect investors; maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets; and facilitate capital formation. A career with the SEC offers work that is exciting, challenging, and rewarding. You can contribute to securities regulation and enforcement while making a positive difference for the American investing public.

The General Counsel is the Chief Legal Officer for the Commission and heads the Office of the General Counsel (OGC). The office provides a variety of legal services to the Commission and staff, and is divided into the following groups: Appellate, General Litigation, Adjudication, Legal Policy, and Business/Technical Support. A position is currently available in the Appellate group.

Duties

- Prepare briefs and other court documents representing the Commission in appeals from district court enforcement actions, Commission adjudicatory proceedings, and Commission rulemakings.
- Present oral argument in appeals from district court enforcement actions, Commission adjudicatory orders, and Commission rulemakings.
- Prepare legal interpretations, legal memoranda, and other advice for the Commission with respect to difficult, complex, and/or novel legal problems.

Qualifications

- J.D. or LL.B. degree and active membership of the bar in good standing in any state, territory of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the commonwealth of Puerto Rico. (Note: proof of bar membership will be required before entry on duty).
- At least four years of appellate experience.
- Superior academic credentials.
- Superior writing ability.
- Desired Skills: former U.S. Court of Appeals clerks.
