Overview

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is looking for the best and brightest to join our team. Our mission is to protect investors, maintain fair, orderly, and efficient markets, and facilitate capital formation. A career with the SEC offers work that is exciting, challenging and rewarding. You can contribute to securities regulation and enforcement while making a positive difference for the American investing public.

Duties

- Address complex legal questions involving the oversight and supervision of the U.S. securities markets (e.g., clearing agencies, exchanges and other self-regulatory organizations), securities market participants (e.g., broker dealers and security-based swap dealers), and implications of recent financial modernization legislation, including drafting, interpreting or applying legislation, orders or regulations.
- Review and analyze proposals for rules and regulations drafted by other Offices or Divisions of the Commission, particularly from the Division of Trading and Markets, with emphasis on matters relating to trading and markets.
- Provide advice on novel questions, including responding to questions on the securities laws, in particular the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and other areas of laws such as administrative laws.
- Prepare a variety of written documents to convey information and analysis, including legal memoranda. Also convey information and analysis orally through briefings, consultations and other presentations.

Qualifications

- J.D. or LL.B. degree
- Active membership of the bar in good standing in any state, territory of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the commonwealth of Puerto Rico
