Mariana Bravo concentrates her practice on professional liability, construction, real estate, and catastrophic personal injury disputes. She has extensive experience in successfully representing attorneys, construction companies, real estate professionals, insurance professionals, and businesses and corporations before administrative tribunals, state, and federal courts. She also advises companies, including Fortune 500 companies, concerning risk management and business practices.

Mariana currently serves as the Hispanic National Bar Association's Vice President of External Affairs and also serves on the Association's Executive Committee. She previously served as the Hispanic National Bar Association's Vice President of Programs and Regional President for the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland and West Virginia.

Mariana heads the Pro Bono initiative at the firm, including the firm's participation with the Washington Lawyer's Committee's D.C. Public School Partnership Program, which matches area law firms with individual public schools in the city to bring tutoring, mentoring, other programs and services to thousands of children. She also actively participates in a number of charitable events throughout the year including the used clothes drive for the homeless and area shelters, sponsored by Gifts for the Homeless, a non-profit corporation comprised of lawyers and staff from area law firms to serve area shelters, and the annual book drive for Turning the Page.

While in law school, Mariana interned at the US Department of Justice in the Organized Crime and Racketeering Section, assisting in the prosecution of white-collar crime. Mariana, who is fluent in Spanish, also studied a semester of law in Argentina, where she interned for the Criminal Court of Investigation in Buenos Aires and assisted in investigating criminal cases. Before entering private practice, Mariana served as law clerk for the Honorable William D. Quarles in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City.
